Esmaa Mohamoud: To Play in the Face of Certain Defeat

January 21 – April 30

To Play in the Face of Certain Defeat is a celebration of diversity and an urgent call to action around issues of racial marginalization. Taking inspiration from the African American writer Ralph Ellison, artist Esmaa Mohamoud explores the ways in which Black bodies at once appear—and yet are rendered metaphorically invisible—within the spaces they navigate. She aims to re-examine understandings of contemporary Blackness, questioning the definitions of Blackness as a colour and shade, and/or as a societal or cultural construction.

Dean Drever: In Black and White

January 21 – April 30

In Black and White is a timely exhibition of the work of Edmonton-born artist Dean Drever. The exhibition features a broad selection of Drever's work, which have been created solely in black and white. Often utilizing images and symbols of white male power and authority, in Drever's work, black and white speak to the drive for power and control, and define two opposing sides or two ways of viewing the same thing. Black and white can be seen as both positive and negative, foreground and background, reality and myth, right and wrong. In Drever's work, black and white must co-exist, just as an oppressor shares the same space with the oppressed. As a viewer, however, we find ourselves positioned in the imaginary space between black and white, in a place where we can create innumerable shades of grey and countless possibilities

Generations: The Sobeys Family and Canadian Art

February 18 - May 21

Generations: The Sobeys Family and Canadian Art tells the story of one family's visionary engagement with Canadian and Indigenous art, braiding together works by early European newcomers like Cornelius Krieghoff; titans of Canadian 20th century art, the Group of Seven, Tom Thomson, Christopher Pratt, Alex Colville, David Milne and Emily Carr; a rich display of works by the Quebec Impressionists, as well as Automatiste painters Jean Paul Riopelle and Paul-Émile Borduas; and works by trail-blazing artists of today, including contemporary Indigenous artists Kent Monkman, Brenda Draney, Brian Jungen and Annie Pootoogook, as well as leading international artist Peter Doig. A recurring theme in the exhibition is the north Atlantic, its role in history and its impact on artists' imaginations.

Organized and circulated by McMichael Canadian Art Collection and curated by Sarah Milroy. This project is funded in part by the Government of Canada. Ce projet est financé en partie par le gouvernement du Canada.

Hanny Al Khoury: La La Lands

February 18 – May 21

La La Lands are imaginary spaces where belonging doesn't need to be continually negotiated and anything is possible. Hanny Al Khoury grew up in a Catholic household in Palestine. His La La Lands are dreamscapes free of the traumas caused by the complexities of this intersectional identity. La La Lands is an imaginary place where traumas have been purged and exorcized. Although the forms and objects represent stories and events from the artist's life, their abstracted nature means that anyone can see things relevant to their own personal journeys.

kisikayastew P'ᓃᓃᓃᓃᓃᓃ ...when the night shines like the day

April 7 - August 13

kisikayastew P'ᓃᓃᓃᓃᓃᓃ ...when the night shines like the day features works by Lana Whiskeyjack. This exhibition is an exploration of the nêhiyaw teachings of the Thirteen Sacred Moons. Within the nêhiyaw (Cree) annual calendar, the year is divided into thirteen moons, each with their own teachings and spiritual significance. Passed on in ceremony and from community knowledge keepers, the teachings remind iskwêwak (women) and diverse genders of their sacred role to nurture and safeguard the culture and lifestyle of the community.

William Hogarth, Industry and Idleness, plate 4, 1747. Etching and engraving. Image courtesy of The Metropolitan Museum of Art.

William Hogarth: Gone to the Dogs

April 1 – August 13

William Hogarth was an English painter and engraver in the 1700's. His most famous engravings are critical of English culture and his satire was directed at all social classes, as well as religion and government. Many of his works are moralizing in nature, warning against the ills of British society at the time and show the exaggerated and disastrous results of immoral choices and actions. The works are elaborate and the actions of main characters are often echoed in details hidden in background scenes, surroundings and secondary characters and animals. Dogs are used by the artist to help tell his stories.

Uii Savage: Celestial Passage

April 29, 2023 – April 2024

Celestial Passage is an augmented reality that uses the AGA's Main Hall as a simulated observation site for viewing North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD) satellite data in real-time. Visitors can navigate a data portrait of orbiting traffic amongst artificially-generated angels. The work blends fantasy with reality to address globalization and the complexity of space politics. This augmented reality is superimposed onto planetary symbols fixed onto the walls of Manning Hall and re-presents information to audiences while rendering visible the unseen but intensifying forces that occupy the public domain of space.
